While he was still a young man in age, he was past middle age in experience with the A man, his wife, and four children lived. He had had the same careful training by his devout Christian mother, but he had gotten employment where he had been thrown into evil associations and had been led into the habit of drink. I found him as he had been described to me, a most delightful gentleman, a man who evidently came from a home of moderate circumstances, for while his clothing was neat and clean, it was well patched.
