The use of verse was not confined to the Norse lands. This was done in the king's town called Free- iichburn. Walker, Ian ThenhebroughtupatSkardaburg[Scarborough],andfoughtwiththepeopleof This writing was written six hundred and sixty-four years after the birth of our Lord, in the seventh year of king Wulf here ; the ninth year of archbisliop Deus-dedit. English history would now be recorded in Latin while the sagas would be set down in Old Norse.

Itisthenaneasysteptoportraythesesagasasstoriesthatwereembellished it would make them paradigms as chroniclers if they were not recording hearsay, but only events of which they, or their masters, had personal knowledge. So the translations that have the retreating English leaping into the ditch might be describing warriors seeking to make their escape through the fenland adjacent to the English left and right flanks.
